Howdy Yucky!

Welcome to our icky, sticky world!

If you've long forgotten what your finger looks like because it spends all day buried in your nose, and if boogies, snot, and goo are smeared all over your shirt, toys, crayons, and blankets - this slimy story is just what you need!

Bugsy and Gooley, we're stinky little creatures, sit back and relax - it's time for our slimy adventures!

Bugsy and Gooley are two naughty bacteria who just love going on disgustawful adventures.

Their greatest dream is to travel to the Slimy Universe – a universe completely different from ours. In its galaxies, stars are formed from dried-up boogers, and instead of a sun, a giant bubble of mucus shimmers across the universe.

Bugsy and Gooley were well aware that a journey to the Slimy Universe was no joke, so they spent years preparing with care and dedication.

They read hundreds of astronomy books, solved thousands of math problems, jumped on moldy trampolines, dived into gooey swamps, ran through muddy trails, and ate piles of rotten fruit and smelly vegetables to build up their strength.

Every evening before bed, they'd stare at posters of the Slimy Universe plastered across the walls in their room and dream of the day they'd become real astronauts. Thanks to a boy named George, their dream was about to come true very soon.

George loves picking his nose. He picks it all the time - at home, at school, when he's alone, or even with friends around. To George, his nose is more fascinating than any toy, and sometimes the boogers he finds are so intriguing that he secretly eats them when no one's looking.

EWWWWW!

All sorts of things, besides boogers, end up in his nose. Once, he pulled out a tiny piece of blueberry, and another time, he almost stuffed the eye of his teddy bear up there.

Although his nose is usually full, George refuses to wipe or blow it. And he absolutely hates when his mom or dad tries to flush it with salty water. That's when he wriggles and screams - because nothing but his finger is allowed in his nose.

When Bugsy and Gooley first laid eyes on George's wonderfully yucky finger, they knew right away - it was the perfect rocket to blast them off to the Slimy Universe hidden inside his nose. After years of preparation, it was finally time for liftoff.

They pulled on their space suits, strapped themselves onto George's finger, and counted down...

...five... four... three... two... one
